“Life Ain’t Always Beautiful”

by Gary Allen

Hunter Morrison, 19, of Fannett, died Thursday, September 19, 2019. He was born on February 16, 2000, to Dana and Tony Morrison. Hunter had a passion for God, country, and guns. He also loved hunting, horseback riding, mud-riding, racing quads, and big trucks. He was a true country boy at heart. Hunter's plan was to join the United States Army Ranger Battalion.

Survivors include his parents, Dana and Tony Morrison, of Fannett; brother, Caleb Morrison and his wife, Hailey and nieces, Sterling "BéBé" and Remingtyn Morrison, all of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma; sister, Katie Sirman-Morrison, of Fannett; grandparents, Carolyn Thomas and Allen and Rachel Morrison; aunt, Connie Sirman and her husband, Tom and uncle, Bill Howell, Jr. and his wife, Becky, all of Moss Bluff, Louisiana; aunt, Lisa Smith and her husband, Ken, of Kingwood; and numerous other aunts, uncles, cousins, and family members.

Welder Hunter on the rise

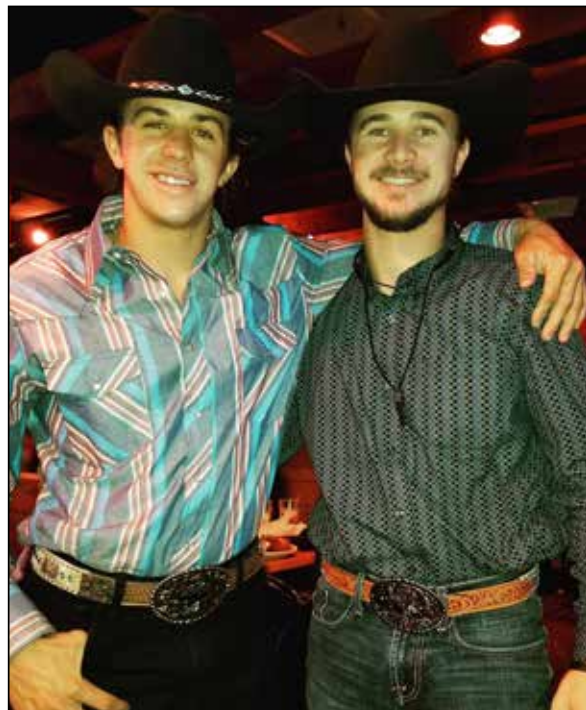

“To my loved and cherished family”

“When I Say”

*When I say, “I’m so sorry,”
I’m feeling not enough.
Things are out of control,
And helping you is tough.
When I say, “I’m so sorry,”
I haven’t been where you are.
I’m watching you feel unbearable pain,
Helpless from afar.
When I say, “I’m so sorry,”
This is sort of what I mean...
I am thinking and praying for you
In the moments in between.
In between monotony,
Sadness, joy, all the same.
I just whisper ‘Jesus’
And simply whisper your name.
When I say, “I’m so sorry,”
I need to share your grief.
I want to take your burden,
And just for a moment,
Give you relief.
You don’t have to answer,
Or tell me that it helps.
No one will ever know
The pain that you’ve been dealt.
When I say, “I’m so sorry,”
Please know I would take your pain,
But in a simple world of simple words,
“I’m so sorry”
Will have to remain.*
