A Blessing

I am asking my friends not to grieve for me
By the word of the Lord, I am now set free.

My spirit has gone to its giver on high.
Oh, what a blessing that man can die!

My spirit is all that has been taken away,
My flesh and bones will return to clay.

I do not want you to mourn or cry.
Oh, what a blessing that man can die!

Failing sight and hearing, too,
There was nothing much left for me to do.

But fold my hands, mope, and sigh.
Oh, what a blessing that man can die!

So, I am laying life's burdens at His feet
In exchange for rest in a Heavenly Retreat.

So please feel thankful. The reason why?
You know it's a blessing that man can die!

Why should you worry when my spirit is free?

Why should you begrudge this freedom to me?

The body is buried, but the spirit's on high.

Do you not think that it is a blessing that man can die?

The last enemy conquered, what more could you ask?

We know who accomplished this Herculean task.

So to Him give thanks as the time draws nigh.

For we know that it is a blessing that man can die!

Some people
come into our lives
and quickly go.

Some stay awhile,
leave footprints
on our hearts,
and we are never
ever the same.
