Jeffrey Lynn Dandurant,

55, of Lumberton, died Friday, October 1, 2021. He was born March 1, 1966, in Bryan, to Linda Louise Landrum Dandurant and Ord Richard Dandurant.

He is survived by his wife, Kimberly Dandurant, of Lumberton; son, Zachary Coutee, of Lumberton; son, Milo; mother, Linda Landrum, of San Antonio; dad, Ken Camp, of San Antonio; sisters, Dixie Durkton of Palm Springs, California and Jeannee Beltran and her husband, David, of San Antonio; and numerous nieces and nephews.

We would like to make this brief, but if you knew Jeff, nothing was brief, and every conversation was long winded. Jeff grew up in the New Braunfels/San Antonio area where he played football and participated in powerlifting for New Braunfels Canyon High School. He then went on to attend college at Southwest Texas State University with his “muscled up and shaved body.” He completed one semester before him and the dean “did not see eye to eye,” so he sold his books and used the money to buy a case of beer. He immediately launched his career in the car business and partnered with his dad to build a successful business, Ken Camp’s Auto World Inc. It did not take long for him to build a reputation and establish himself as a legend within the car business. Most people would think it was a love for cars that made him so successful, but it was his love for people and his extraordinary talent for building relationships. He had a passion for fishing from a young age that carried on throughout his life. He somehow had more late starts in the day than early ones when going fishing, but he always caught something, whether it was a fish or a buzz. It brought him much joy to bring his mom, dad, and two sisters out on the boat. One of his means of entertainment was the casino in which he considered himself a “professional blackjack player.” He would always say he was “one lucky cat.” Jeff had a deep love for his family and enjoyed spending time with them, especially his nieces and nephews. He was known as the fun uncle. He lived the bachelor lifestyle for 46 years before he met the love of his life, Kimberly, after lightning struck poolside. He always considered it “an intervention from God,” and ever since June 14th, 2012, they have never been apart. It did not take long for him to weasel his way into Kimberly and her son Zach’s life by relocating to Southeast Texas. He would bring two to three articles of clothing each visit and leave them until half of Kimberly’s closet was full. Within a year, they were engaged and opened Lumberton Auto World LLC together. He then had his own family and soon welcomed Milo, his four-legged son, who he considered his own blood. He became a second dad to Zach by attending all his school sporting events, supporting him in all his life endeavors, and showing him love as if he was his own son. Jeff’s life was encompassed by joy and laughter. He was always the life of the party and had a smile that was recognized by all. He had many lifelong friends with nonstop stories of adventures which he treasured immensely. To say he lived a full life is an understatement. He will be missed dearly.
